FEBRUARY WEBCAST: Subsea Boosting & Processing

Subsea processing, separating, compressing, and pumping are on the leading edge of offshore production technology, especially for deep and ultra deepwater, and also for harsh environments. The advantages of putting separation, processing and pumping on the seafloor are sufficient that both operators and equipment suppliers are developing subsea systems to accomplish tasks previously restricted to the surface.

In this webcast, industry speakers will discuss solutions and lessons learned in the evolution of developing separation and processing equipment for subsea location.
